Meet the Author: Sofia Ali-Khan

Date and Time: Monday, March 13 07:00 p.m. - 8:00 p.m.

Address: 2331 New St

A Good Country: My Life in Twelve Towns and the Devastating Battle for a White America follows the story of Sofia Ali-Khan, a Muslim Pakistani/American/Canadian in the places in America she called home. Part memoir, part historical exploration, A Good Country examines how racist-forced migration has maintained a white America.

The book chronicles the author's experiences tripping over the colour line in each town she was living in and reveals the hidden backstory of the colour line. How did America's Chinatowns originate? What happened to the original indigenous Maroon and Seminole people in the creation of Florida? A Good Country seeks answers to questions like these across Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Arizona, South Dakota, Arkansas, Massachusetts, and Illinois. As she ties historical narratives into her life history, Sofia Ali-Khan gives a first-hand account of what it is like growing up and living in the U.S. as a Muslim American. Her book is both a coming-of-age and a coming-to-faith story that poses the ultimate question of what would it take to make America a good country?

Meet the Author: Margaret Nowaczyk

Date and Time: Monday, March 27 07:00 p.m. - 8:00 p.m.

Address: 2331 New St

For Dr. Margaret Nowaczyk, a pediatrician specializing in rare genetic disorders in children, chasing zebras—finding the right but less obvious or rare diagnosis—has been a decades-long journey. Her memoir Chasing Zebras looks at the isolation, loneliness, and trauma of giving terrible, life-altering diagnoses to parents and how necessary it is to have coping mechanisms to deal with the pain and heartache involved.

From leaving Communist Poland to enduring the demands of medical school, through living with a long undiagnosed mental illness to discovering the fascinating field of genetics, plunging into the pressures of prenatal diagnosis, and finally finding the tools of writing and narrative medicine, Margaret shares a journey that is both inspiring and harrowing. This is a story of constant effort, growth, tragedy, triumph—and most of all, of the importance of openness. In the end, Dr. Nowaczyk invites us all to see that "life is precious and fragile and wondrous and full of mistakes." And to keep trying.
