Address: 2331 New St

Sharply political and frequently magical, these often-intimate poems reach for everything from Hayao Miyazaki's 1997 film, Princess Mononoke, to German Orientalist scholarship on early Islam. (House of Anansi Press)

Sanna Wani's work has appeared in Brick, Poem-A-Day (poets.org), and Best Canadian Poetry 2020. She lives in Mississauga, Ontario, and Srinagar, Kashmir. 'My Grief, My Sun' is her first collection of poetry.

The book tells the stories of people with visible disabilities and disorders as they learn to overcome society's limitations to live a full and happy life.

About Finding Edward

Cyril Rowntree, a mixed-race Jamaican, migrates to Canada after his mother and surrogate grandfather die. Cyril arrives in Toronto and sets about earning a degree, works two jobs, and begins to navigate his way through the implications of being racialized in his new land. A chance encounter with a panhandler named Patricia leads Cyril to a suitcase full of photographs and letters dating back to the early 1920s. Cyril is drawn into the letters and their story of a white mother's struggle to come to terms with the need to give up her mixed-race baby, Edward. Abandoned by his white father as a small child, Cyril feels a compelling connection to the boy and begins to look for the rest of Edward's story. As he searches, Cyril unearths hidden pieces of Canadian history and gradually gains the confidence to trust his own judgment.
